

A lot of my designs almost felt too simple so, in a strange way, I feel like the ones that are a little more complex feel better visually to me anyway and as I posed even the simple ones they tended to get more complex the more I posed them.

Posing I think I tended to struggle the most with because if the character was even a little bunched up or had overlapping limbs or something the silhouette seemed hard to read.

Some of the best I feel were when I let the pose do its own thing and played around with it more. Some of the earlier ones tend to feel very similar no matter how I tried to pose them.

Literally everything changed from unit 1. From my approach to the things I studied. There are more things different then similar to unit 1.

Pose Looks Strange

Not very readable more round designed

