i finished the armor and added straps to them then I connected small things together like the mushrooms on her head then uv and colored(i didnt texture it yet). UVing this felt really strange to me for some reason. It felt like I was dissecting a frog or something which I've never felt before while uving but maybe its because this is the uv for a creature ive done. I think at the level its at could be useable for production but i feel like it needs more work for me to be fully confident in it
